And having received an answer in sleep that they should not return to Herod, they went back another way into their country. This window is rich in color and striking in its contrasts. Here again the artist has succeeded in portraying a vivid realization of earthly pomp and glory as displayed by the Kings from the East, in direct contrast with the simplicity of the little heavenly King. Not only in their costly robes of scarlet, dark brown, and olive green, do these Eastern rulers differ from the One they have come to adore, but in the expression of amazement that marks their features at beholding the Infant Savior. They kneel at His feet, humble suppliants, full of respect, and present Him with frankincense, myrrh and gold, symbolic of their faith, hope and charity. Jesus, clad in a little frock of scarlet, is sitting in His mother s lap, His little hands poised again in benediction. Mary s face is transformed with joy and she lovingly holds her...
